CULTIVATING THE SMALL GRAINS.

The notion of some agricultural writers that wheat, rye, oats and barley would water. in a few years be cultivated, as corn is any present experience. The spring small grains are undoubtedly benefited on rich land by harrowing when they come up, because on such land this induces the plants to tiller or spread, and shoot up more stalks than they otherwise would. But when the plant is nearing the time for heading out cultivation would certainly be harmful. It would induce too rank a growth, causing the heads from filling. The check to small port with the steamer Caledonia on a regrain from each stem crowding its neighbor prevents any from getting an oversupply of nitrogen, and is better for the erop than growing each plant by itself. The scattering oat plants that sometimes appear in hoed crops, passing through the excrement of grain-fed horses, usually rust so badly that neither straw nor grain is worth anything .- Boston Cultivator.

The name artichoke is from an Armenian word "ardischanki," or earth thorn. The Jerusalem artichoke, from "girasole," the Italian name for the sunflower, was introduced into Europe from Brazil in 1620. The artichoke became a common article of diet in England before the potatoes could be indulged in by the masses of the people. It was boiled and baked, pickled and male into pies. Although much inferior to the potato in flavor it was still a good substitute.

Since potatoes have become so plentiful the artichoke has fallen into disfavor, except as food for stock, though occasionally the tubers are still used for pickles. It is said that the French used the foliage and stem fibre for making cordage. The artichoke flourishes best in rich ground, but will grow freely in silverware of the palace, for King Saul will give a state dinner to-day. A distinguished place is kept at the table for his son-in-law, a celebrated warrior. David by name. The guests, jeweled and plumel, come in and take their places. When people are invited to a king's banquet they are very apt to go. But before the covers are litted from the feast Saul looks around and finds a vacant seat at the table. He says within himself, perhaps audibly, "What does this mean? Where is my son-in-law? Where is David, the great warrior? I invited him. I expected him. What a vacant chair at the king's banquet?" The fact was that David, the warrior, had been seated for the last time at his fathervalid's chair is the mighty pulpit from which they have been preaching, all these years, trust in God. The first time I preached here at Lakeside, Ohio, amid the torongs present, there was nothing that so much impressed me as the spectacle of just one face—the face of an invalid who was wheele lin on her chair. I said to her afterward: "Madam, how long have you been prostrated?" for size was lying flat in the chair. "Oh?" she replied. "I have been this way fifteen years." I said. "Do you saffer very much?" "Oh, yes," she said. "I suffer very much?" "Oh, yes," she said. "I suffer very much? suffer all the time; part of the time I was blind. I always suffer." "Well," I said. "can you keep your courage up?" "Oh, yes," she said, "I suffer very happy indeed." Her face showed it. She looked the happiest of any one on the ground.

Oh. what a means of grace to the world. these invalid chairs. On that field of buman suffering the grace of God gets its victory. Elward Payson, the invalid, and Richard Baxter, the invalid, and Robert Hall, the invalid, and the ten thousand of whom the world has never heard, but of whom all heaven is cognizant. The most conspicuous thing on earth for God's eye and the eye of angels to rost on, is not a throne of earthly power, but it is the invalid's chair. Oh, these men and women who are always suffering, but never compaining—these victims of spinal disease, and neuralgic torture, and rheumatic exeruciation will answer to the roll call of the martyrs, and rise to the martyr's throne, and will wave the martyr's palm.

But when one of these invalids chairs becomes vacant how suggestive it is! No more bolstering up of the weary head. No more changing from side to side to get an easy position. No more use of the bandage and the cataplasm and the prescription. That invalid chair may be folded up or taken apart, or set away, but it will never lose its queenly power, it will always preach of trust in God and cheerful submission. Suffering all endel now. With respect to that invalid the works of m "they said: "you trouble the Master."

Trouble Him: He has filled heaven with that kin1 of trouble.

A pioneer in California says that for the first year or two after his resilence in Sierra Nevarla county there was not a single child in all the reach of a hundred miles. But the Fourth of July came, and the miners were gathered together and they were celebrating the Fourth with oration and poem and a boisterous brass band, and while the band was playing an infant's voice was heard crying, and all the miners were startled, and the swarthy men began to think of their homes on the extern coast, and of their wives and children far away, and their hearts were thrilled with homesic ness as they heard the babe cry. But the music went oo, and the child cried touler and louder, and the brass band played louder and louder, trying to drown out the infantile interruption, when a swarthy rumer, the tears rolling down his face, got up and shook his filst and said, "Stop that noisy hand, and give the baby a cannee." On, there was pathos in it, as well as good caser in it. There is nothing to arous and melt and subdue the soul like a child's voice. But when it goes away from you the high chair becomes a nigher chair and there is desolation all about you.

In three-fourths of the homes of this coningher chair and there is desolation all about you.

In three-fourths of the homes of this congregation there is a vacant high chair. Somehow you never get over it. There is no one to put to be I at night; no one to ask stratze questions about God and heaved. On, what is the use of that high chair? It is to call you higher. What a drawing upward it is to have critiren in heaven! And then it is such a preventive against sin. If a father is going away into sin he leaves his living children with their mother; but if a father is going away into sin what is be going to do with its dead children floating about him and hovering over his every wayward step. Oh, speak out, vacant higo chair, and say. "Father, come back from side mother, come back from worldliness. I am watching you. I am waiting for you. With respect to your child the words of my text have been fulfilled. Thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty."

My hearers, I have gathered up the voices of your departed friends and tried to intone them into one invitation upward. I set in array all the vacant chairs of your bomes and of your social circle, and I bid them cry out this mornung: "Time is short. Eternity is near. Take my Saviour Be at poac."

We lived together on earth; come let us live together in heaven." We answer that invitation. We come. Keep a seat for us, as Saul kept a seat for David, but that seat shail not be empty. And oh! when we are all through with this world, and we have shaken hands all around for the last time, and all our chairs in the home circle and in the outside world shall be vacuat, may we be worshiping God in that place from which we shall go out no more forever. It was a beautiful chair, but the most significant part of it was the letter "N" embroidered into the back of the chair in purple and gold. And your father's old chair sits in the throne room of your heart, and your affections have embroided into the back of that old chair in purple and gold the letter "F" Have all the prayers of that old chair been answered? An Old Lady's Resource.

Many years ago, while traveling in the East, an old English lady with a good deal of character and a complete separated from the rest of her party, and was soon surrounded by a crowd of Arabs, eager, curious, and clamoring for bakshish. After a while the attentions of these children of the desert became very unwelcome, not to say positively alarming; so, thinking that at all events the experiment could do no harm, she suddenly whipped out her false teeth and snapped them vigorously in the faces of the Arabs. The effect was magical; the horrorstruck natives with one accord wheeled round and took to their heels, and the lady got back to her tent in safety.

'August Flower"

The Hon. J. W. Fennimore is the Sheriff of Kent Co., Del., and lives at Dover, the County Seat and Capital of the State. The sheriff is a gentleman fifty-nine years of age, and this is what he says : "I have used your August Flower for several years in my family and for my own use, and found it does me more good than any other remedy. I have been troubled with what I call Sick Headache. A pain comes in the back part of my head first, an I then soon a general headache until I become sick and vomit. At times, too, I have a fullness after eating, a pressure after eating at the pit of the stomach, and sourness, when food seemed to rise up in my throat and mouth. When I feel this coming on if I take a little August Flower it relieves me, and is the best remedy I have ever taken for it. For this reason I take it and recommend it to others as a great remedy for Dyspepsia, &c.
